

Directions for Family Journal

We will begin our Family Journal soon! The Family Journal is a wonderful communication tool for you and your child. The children will work with me in class to write about things we are learning. They will also write a question. This question is to be answered by a parent, grandparent, older sibling, aunt, uncle, friend of the family, etc. Different people can take turns responding to the child by writing in the Journal each week.

You are welcome to share your knowledge by stating what you know or looking up information that you may not know much about. Your child can learn from you when you model how to find more information. We will share these journals in class on Monday so it is very important that you return the journal to school each Monday. When your child does not have their journal in class it is difficult for them to share their information and write the next entry.

I hope you enjoy the journaling experience this year. You and your child will be able to learn about many wonderful things in a way that helps him/her to communicate through writing. Have fun!

Directions for Family Journal

We will begin our Family Journal this week. The Family Journal is a wonderful communication tool for you and your child. The children will work with me in class to write about things we are learning. They will also write a question. This question is to be answered by a parent, grandparent, older sibling, aunt, uncle, friend of the family, etc. Different people can take turns responding to the child by writing in the Journal each week.

You are welcome to share your knowledge by stating what you know or looking up information that you may not know much about. Your child can learn from you when you model how to find more information. We will share these journals in class on Monday so it is very important that you return the journal to school each Monday. When your child does not have their journal in class it is difficult for them to share their information and write the next entry.

I hope you enjoy the journaling experience this year. You and your child will be able to learn about many wonderful things in a way that helps him/her to communicate through writing. Have fun!