

Early Years NSTA Connection

Books for children and adults with information about ecosystems:

Allen, J., and T. Humphries. 2000. Are you a ladybug? (and other books in this series). New York: Kingfisher Books.

Fredericks, A.D. 2004. Teaching through trade books: Exploring ecosystems. Science and Children (41) 7: 16–18.

Hartman, E., and W. Meshbesh. 2012. What is the threat of invasive species? Chicago: Heinemann Library.

Kurtz, K. 2010. A day on the mountain (and other books in the series). Mount Pleasant, SC: Sylvan Dell Publishing.

Miller, D. S. 2000. River of life. New York: Clarion Books.

Oxlade, C. 2002. Materials, materials, materials: Soil. Chicago: Heinemann Library.

Stewart, M. 2013. A place for turtles (and other books in the series). Atlanta: Peachtree Publishers.

Yolen, J. 2001. Welcome to the river of grass. New York: Penguin Books.

Resources for adults and older children about ecosystems:

Batten, M. 2003. Aliens from Earth: When animals and plants invade other ecosystems. Atlanta: Peachtree Publishers.

Campbell, A. 2009. Honeybees, butterflies, and ladybugs: Partners to plants. Science and Children 46 (6): 29–33.

Richardson, G. 2009. Ecosystems. New York: Weigl Publishers.