Connected Science Learning is all about collaboration between schools and out-of-school organizations with the goal of providing impactful and innovative STEM programming. This issue goes beyond getting a partnership started to exploring how they last. Has your partnership been around for 5 years? 10 years? Longer? What conditions make this possible? What commitments help ensure success? Articles in this issue will provide experience-based tips for how to keep partnerships going—and inspire readers to build new collaborations and strengthen the ones they already have!
